Wishing You A Merry Christmas

Story of Christmas

By Rev. T. H. Wright, B.A.

December is the Christmas month, and it is a happy co-incidence that to those living in this part of British Columbia that Christmas comes when the days are darkest and shortest of the whole year.

Then comes the festival of light and laughter, and the Christmas story of the birth of Christ, which is the sweetest story the world has ever heard, is told again and it never grows old or stale as do other stories. The story told in 1929 will be just as fresh as a spring day. No story so stirs the heart of humanity as the story of the Christ-child. It is still full of beauty and charm for the boys and girls and men and women in every walk of life.

Christmas Day seems to be dedicated as a gift day. Trees, glittering with toys, holly and bibboned packages, Christmas dinners, visits, merry meetings, all manifest a spirit of love and brotherhood that is not so visibly manifest at other seasons of the year. Long after the child's Christmas toys are broken; long after families become widely separated, the feeling will remain fresh in the memory of those happy Christmas associations which were made possible by the birth of Christ.

The star that guided the wise men and the light that shone around the shepherds, both told of the presence of the "Light of the World." At the birth of Christ a star shone over an empire containing the seeds of death and decay. Skepticism in religion was flowed at Rome, as always, by skepticism of morals. Political life was attempt and social life was unspeakable. In this weary and degenerate Jesus Christ was born in Bethlehem, and His star in the East betokened the coming of a glad and a brighter

The Astrologers of Mesopotamia at the time of the advent of the star as in the latter days of Herod, the place in the land of Judea, under Saturn were in conjunction at the appointed time under such circumstances as to appear as one glorious and resplendent heavenly body and it seemed to marshal the forces of the magi from their own to Jerusalem, Bethlehem and the manger-inn. The two planets shone all night long for months in conjunction with each other, as if they would never separate again. Their first union in the east awoke the attention of the magi, and seemed to tell the magi that the long expected time had arrived and they set off without delay toward Judea. When they reached Jerusalem the two planets were once more blended into one beautiful star. In the evening it shone in the southern part of the sky, pointing the united rays toward Bethlehem where prophecy foretold the Messiah was to be born. The wise men followed the finger of light and were brought to the Christ-child in the manger. Their gifts, gold, frankincense and myrrh, were supposed to typify His Royalty, Priesthood and Suffering.

The spirit of Christianity is not dead. It speaks through the records of the great international gatherings for world peace and betterment. We might cite two examples—Locarno, with its attempt to bring a group of great nations to an understanding that should make for permanent peace and which blazes the trail for national goodwill. Then the quick action of the League of Nations to check quarrels is the incarnation of the Christ spirit, and is another step along the road to Bethlehem.

May this Christmas time bring to all its blessings and may we visit Bethlehem in spirit and catch the inspiration and joy which came to the wise men and the shepherds.

Glory to God in the Highest! was the angelic song, and our best thoughts bless God as do our finest devotions. The Pilgrim Fathers give a good example of expressing appreciation for blessings received. They braved the seas, on the Mayflower and one of their first acts on arrival on the bleak New England coast was to lift up their psalms of praise to God for His guidance and protection. Winter skies did not chill their ardour. May we, in this new generation, with its greater advantages, look to God for guidance and protection on the sea of life and not forget the source from whence life's blessings flow. In our great Canadian Dominion may we act well our part in laying wisely and well the foundations of national greatness.

The dance was the auspices of the Hazelton Sub and the two musical instruments were drawn for as an extra incentive for people to buy tickets. A number of tickets were sold and netted a nice sum. The attraction at the dance was about the usual, but the young people having had a good time. The weather was very cold and the roads were too good. How Alice Arm Got Its Name

The town of Alice Arm derived its name from the narrow strip of water branching off from Observatory Inlet. How this piece of water received its name has been the source of much speculation during recent years.

Dr. Geo. Hanson of the Dominion geological survey department, who has spent several summers in the district, gives the reason for the word "Alice" in his report covering his work there in 1928.

In the introduction of his report he states that "Observatory Inlet" was named by Captain Vancouver in 1793. Alice Arm was named in 1860 after Alice, wife of Rev. Robert Tomlinson, who was in charge of the Church Missionary Society Mission at Kincolith. Sixty years ago this pleasant piece of water was named. An enduring memorial to that pioneer lady of the north who forsook the comforts of civilization in order to be with her husband in ministering to the spiritual and bodily wants of the then savage inhabitants of the north coast.

Owing to Christmas being on our regular publication day this paper will be issued Thursday next week.

Credit System Receiving Lot Of Attention

Canadian houses are finding that retail credit can be "mightily constructive" if used with discretion and "dangerously malevolent" if abused. This also is a condition which has been found true in the United States where it is found that from $20,000,000,000 worth of goods is annually retailed on credit and although some credit practices have not been seriously strained "huge annual losses and a sizeable percentage of bankruptcies have resulted from unwise credit extensions."

Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of Commerce, of Washington, in a broadcast address said: "I wonder if we realize the truly prodigious economic factors that are set in motion each day as several millions of us consumers, on concluding our purchases respond to the final query of the store clerk with the casual 'Charge it please' That incidental murmur is, in reality one of the most potent forces in American business. It is certainly up to all of us then to be informed on the elements of its influence and effect."

"Deferred payments and charge accounts have wrought a tremendous transformation not only in our methods of doing business but in all our national life and thought. Most of us can remember fairly well when people 'who owed bills at the store were looked at askance. 'What a change we see today. Credit in the retail field has flourished and expanded like the green bay tree'. Vast industries of economic importance in our economic structures rest largely on the basis of instalment selling.

Some economists have feared that such selling is expanding excessively. They talk of unemployment and lack of wages to meet the obligations. These are questions which must be considered seriously. Some of the credit practices have not yet been subjected to any really greivous strain—but certain others have and there have been huge annual losses through unwise credit extension.

It is a fairly new practice and one which needs to be carefully studied thoroughly before responsibility of bankruptcy is laid on it.

What Happened To Investment Trust in Crash

In the past three years hundreds of "investment trusts" have sprung up in Canada and the United States. Into their coffers have flowed hundreds of millions of dollars, the savings of hundreds of thousands seeking safe but gainful investment.

The hundreds of thousands who invested through this channel are asking what happened to them in the series of great market crashes which featured October and November. Thus far even the highest authorities here and in New York have been unable to supply the answer.

The situation is that what are properly termed investment trusts have no liabilities other than to their shareholders and annual reports will have to be awaited, though in many cases the abandonment of special dividends will indicate the elimination of trading profits in the securities which

Popularity of the "investment trust" with the public resulted in the flexing of the functions which were originally exercised under the title until to-day there are six definite types of so-called "Investment trusts". They are: General Management Trust; Fixed Investment Trust; Semi Fixed Investment Trust; Trading Companies; Finance Companies; Holding Companies.

The first is the original British type of trust, holding widely diversified securities which the management has authority to trade as its discretion. Its success is measured by the ability of the management.

The fixed investment trust has its portfolio of securities and, irrespective of any consideration, they remain unaltered.

The semi fixed trust permits the management to make certain changes, usually to replace—where they deem advisable—stocks with other issues already in their portfolio.

The trading company is simply a pool method of speculating and would profit or lose in a bear market according to the wisdom of the operators.

The finance company deals with the reorganizing refinancing of "lame ducks" of industry and would not be certain changes, usually to replace—where they deem advisable—stocks with other issues already in their portfolio.

Holding companies are mostly concerned with holding controlling interests in a number of enterprises of similar or allied character. Like the finance companies they are unable to individually sell their holdings without risking the loss of control of constituent companies.

Thus, while the market values of a great number of the securities held by all types of trusts must have been materially affected by the panics, only general management and trading types of trusts would be any factor in the market movement. The trading trust, conceivably, might be as interested in depressing prices as in stabilizing them while the general management trust—always conservatively managed when well managed—would be limited to a moderate exchange of securities selling at high levels for others which the management had reason to believe were available well below their intrinsic value.

Cutting Farmers Work With a New Combine

Canadian and Australian interests have combined for the manufacture of a new type compact harvest-thresher machine, which will retail at about $2,700 in Australia, according to the report from Toronto. The deal will involve the formation of a new $2,500,000 company and the erection of a plant which will employ 1,500 hands.

According to reports the 'Aussie' combine is small and compact. It cuts a swath ahead of itself on the principal of the push binder but there is no reel. Across the front of the machine is a comb made up of stripper guards about a foot long. Projecting in front of these are detachable lift-up fingers which may be used to straighten grain which is down or bent.

When the machine pushes into the crop it is then adjusted so that the stripper guards push in about two inches below the head, and below these guards is a sickle that nips the heads off. Twin rotating spirals then catch them and feed them to the centre of the machine, where they enter the cylinder. Thus the grain enters the cylinder with very little straw.

The cylinder is of the bar type and is so constructed that five adjustments can be made from the drivers seat. The cylinder is also equipped with fans and the cleaning of the grain starts right in the cylinder. The sieves are of the slide-shake type and after being threshed the grain elevates to the tank. The tank is low and in order to load the wagon the grain is elevated out.

The whole machine is driven by one motor and runs on three wheels. There are no belts or canvases on the machine at all, and only a few chains. The working speed is three miles per hour and this 12 foot machine, under favorable conditions, will cut 40 acres a day.

Since it is a one man, one motor machine its cost of operation is very reasonable. In cutting between 75 and 80 acres of wheat running 20 bus to the acre, it consumes about 30 gallons of gas.

California has not as yet been invaded by the Mediterranean fruit fly which is bringing distress to Florida. Is it possible the Western oranges have no insects appeal?

Since these "trusts" became popular investment avenues their course through a rising market was strewn with roses. Dividends in many instances, came with regularity and in volume from trading profits. How they weathered their first big storm—except in the case of trading companies which were completely wrecked—will not be known until the annual reports come out.

HOUSEHOLD BUDGET IS FAST VANISHING

The emancipation of "mother" proceeds at such a pace that soon she will have to seek outside employment in order to have anything to do.

Commerce statistics show that even the humble carrot is now diced and cooked and sent her ready for warming. The potatoes is about the only vegetable left for her to tinker with from its natural state. Even there if she wants it in chips or in salad there are countless thousands of stores waiting to serve her.

From soups to desserts she can get a ready cooked meal off the shelves. Even the bread comes sliced. An evidence of how mother is backing out of the kitchen is reflected in the sale of $30,000,000 worth of prepared mayonnaise dressing in the past year.

What with electrical contrivances, gas stoves and the rest, father would probably be content to wear the petticoats and let mother bring home the wherewithal.

The Salmon Canneries

It has been declared by Richard Gosse of Vancouver that during 1928 the Indians took from the Naas, Skeena, and Fraser rivers 240,000 sockeye. He, as representing the Salmon Canneries of British Columbia, appealed to the deputy minister of fisheries, to have abolished the Indians' privilege to take salmon from the rivers while they are on their way to the spawning grounds. His idea was to increase the number of salmon for the canning factories.

We have every respect for Mr. Gosse and for the salmon canneries. But they are a purely commercial lot of men and consider only themselves and their own pockets. They have made much money out of salmon and they have been making it for so many years that, what was originally granted them as a privilege is now regarded by them as a divine right i. e.: the privilege of commercializing the salmon.

Mr. Gosse's figure of 240,000 sockeye salmon taken by the Indians is purely an estimate, and it would nautilly not be a low estimate coming from the canning interests. Almost any other figure would be as near right—that is beside the question.

What really matters is what are the Indians do if they are shut off from fishing. Mr. Gosse does not offer any alternative. So far as his interests are concerned the Indians are non-existent. But so far as the life and interests of the country adjacent to those rivers mentioned are concerned the Indian is very much existent. In this matter the white population would certainly support the Indian and to a considerable extent.

Already the Indians have been cut down on their fishing privileges (or more nearly correctly in their case rights). They cannot sell a fish, nor give them away. They are allowed to take only what they need for food. The number of days has also been reduced. It seems that the canning interests have already had the limit of restrictions placed on the Indian, to such an extent, in fact, that Mr. Gosse can think of no more restrictions than except abolition.

Mr. Gosse, and the salmon canneries, are only interested in more dividends for themselves. The welfare of the country, or the welfare of the Indian (Canadians all of them) is forgotten. The government would not be well advised to take seriously Mr. Gosse's appeal for further assistance, to the B. C. Canneries. Let the Canneries take less salmon and thus increase the supply. The Indian must eat.

BUCKING THE NORTH ROADS

Judging from opinions expressed by men from Vancouver visiting or traveling through the north, it is apparent that Vancouver has started a campaign to knock any new road work in the north. Since Premier Toimie and his ministers announced that the country north of the Grand Trunk Pacific was to be developed by automobile roads, the people in the south imagine they are about to lose some of the money the government spends. Vancouver men are ridiculing an auto road paralleling the railway. They oppose any road north and state that the southern roads are in a deplorable state. That latter statement is utterly rot, but Vancouver men will try to make it stick. The north needs to work together and not allow Vancouver continue to hog it all.

J. B. Agar returned Wednesday of last week from a trip to Rupert.

Mrs. A. Tessier left early in the week on a trip to Australia. She sailed on the 11th on the Aorange.

Mrs. Finter and daughter Ella are spending a few weeks holiday with Mrs. Finter's sisters in Edmonton.

Al. Moore returned home Wednesday after spending several weeks in Prince Rupert and Vancouver.

The regular monthly meeting of the Parent Teacher's Association was held on Thursday evening but owing to the first cold snap the attendance was poor. The arrangements for the community Christmas Tree were made and the affair will be held this Wednesday evening, the 18th. At the January meeting Rev. H. Allen will give a talk on Religious Education in Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Win. Fulton of Prince Rupert and Major Hearne of Lakelse were joint hosts at a most enjoyable dance held in the Legion Hall on Wednesday evening. The local orchestra provided excellent music and the dancing was lively. Mr. and Mrs. Fulton had been spending some time at their cottage at Lakelse making final arrangements for the winter. They returned to Rupert Thursday.

O. T. Sundol of Terrace has been appointed a Justice of the Peace.

The district is in the grip of a cold snap. It has been as low as three below zero.

The young people are enjoying the first skating of the season on the old horseshoe pond. If the weather continues favorable there will be a number of skating parties given.

The Farmers' Institute will hold its annual meeting on Dec. 19.

E. Johnston and T. Shackleton of Usk were business visitors in Terrace early this week.

Mr. Dalquist was down from Cedarvale this week.

Misses Gwyer and Munro were dinner hostesses on Saturday evening and entertained the school staff.

The annual meeting of the Bible Society was held at the home of Cannon and Mrs. Marsh on Monday night.

The W. A. of the Anglican church is to meet at the home of Mrs. W. C. Sparkes on Friday instead of Wednesday as formerly.

There was a poor turnout at the W. I. last Tuesday afternoon due to the cold weather. A vote of confidence was passed in the move to reopen the hospital which was closed for the lack of funds to carry on. The ladies feel that the poor train service during the winter justifies an effort being made to provide accommodation for emergency cases. Working together, the ladies feel, will make for success. The Institute ladies then voted $5.00 to the Christmas tree fund and $2.00 for the Lakelse school tree which will be held on Friday, Dec. 20.

The United Church Christmas Tree and entertainment will be held Friday evening, Dec. 20.

Commons Will Again Discuss National Road

The Government will be asked at the next session of Parliament to reconsider its policy with regard to aid in highway construction.

Two suggestions were advanced during this year's session. There remain some 600 miles of highway to be built to give Canada a national road from coast to coast. Most of this lies along the shore of Lake Superior and it was asked that the government undertake its construction. The second proposal was that the granting of aid to the provinces in road building which was inaugurated in 1919 be revived for another five year period.

reluctance of the Government to vote The Prime Minister explained the "ear-marked" money to the provinces—that is money granted for specific work—and neither plan was adopted. Next session the proponents of Federal aid in the highway building will renew their pleas. They are following closely the progress of plans in the United States for the Federal construction of the whole system of national "express" highways to care for the fast traffic and, incidentally, to play an important role in reducing unemployment.

Contract for building a 5,500,000 bushel grain elevator at Prescott, Ontario, on the St. Lawrence has recently been let by the Canadian Government. Its cost will be about $3,100,000 and construction must be completed by August 1, 1930. It is hoped it will be ready before the Welland Canal, built at a cost of $120,000,000 is opened before next year's grain harvest in Western Canada begins.

Official report on employment in Canada states that in October of this year conditions were exceptionally satisfactory. Reports from 7027 employers with staffs totaling 1,089,583 persons, showed employment at 125, based on the average for the calendar year as 100. This is the highest on record for the time of year and compares with 118.8 for October 1, 1928.

World-wide interest is being attracted by the Canadian Pacific plans to include Honolulu as a port of call on westbound voyages of its White Empress fleet, commencing in December. Grant Hall, vice-president of the Railway, stated at Vancouver recently. Though taking these ships a little out of their course to Yokohama, it will still leave them their supremacy as making the "fastest run" between this continent and the Orient, he added.

Three functions of interest which are expected to attract hundreds of Canadian and American tourists will be staged in Victoria in the next three months. They are the Yuletide Music Festival in Decem-

CANADIANS FACING MORE COMPETITION

The hog industry of Canada must prepare to face increased competition to the projected construction, by British interests, of packing plants in Bulgaria, with a direct line of steamships to western Europe and other alterations in that part of Europe.

In the markets of Germany, Czechoslovakia, Austria, and Adriatic ports and the Orient, wheat, wheat flour, and lard from Canada are now competing with wheat, wheat flour, lard, pork and pork products from Hungary, Rumania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria.

The recent expansion of corn acreage in the South Danube states, the increased shipments of hogs, pork, pork products and lard up the Danube and the projected construction by British interests of packing plants in Bulgaria, with a direct line of steamships to western Europe, centres attention upon the potential importance of the south Danube corn belt as a hog producing region. There is little question that the hog industry of Canada must prepare to face increased competition from the lower Danube basin.

Advertised Goods Are Lower

ADVERTISING turns over stocks rapidly, and therefore multiplies profits. This means that prices in a shop which advertises can be short rather than long.

Of this you may be sure: Prices in a shop which advertises are not MORE than in a shop which does not advertise. The chances are that they are oftentimes lower.

This, also, is generally true: You will find better goods, better values and better service in those shops which turn over their stocks rapidly. This means, as a general thing, shops which advertise.

A NOTE TO MERCHANTS

Advertising costs you nothing—it is paid for by the profits of increased sales.

Advertising is easy—it is simply saying in writing what you say to your customers in your shop. Turn over stocks quickly, if you would make more money.

This is the kind of weather that makes one shovel coal. Those who burn wood are cutting, splitting and packing in all the time, no matter how the weather changes, only when it is cold they saw, split and pack more so. The coal burners enjoy much more comfort for less money and only a fraction of the work.

A Fascinating Link in History The Dominion

One exhibit which immediately strikes the imagination of the most casual visitor to the Dominion Archives in Ottawa is the model of Quebec, the fruits of the genius of Lieut. J. B. Duberger, of the Royal Engineers, constructed in 1795, and finished in 1809.

The model is cut entirely out of wood and modelled to a certain scale (24 feet to the inch) and is the city of Quebec without any details lacking. Even the miniature ships riding at anchor on the bosom of the St. Lawrence are shown.

Duberger's model has had a checkered career. After it was completed it was placed in the ball room of the Chateau St. Louis, and in 1813 was taken to England by Colonel By and placed in Woolwich Arsenal. It remained there 100 years and then was rescued from oblivion by Dr. A. G. Doughty, C. M. G. and through the influence of the late Governor-General Earl Grey. When it came into the possession of the Department of Dominion Archives, it was in most dilapidated condition. It had received a generous coat of paint which blotted out the doors and windows of tiny houses. The guns of the batteries the trees on the gardens, the division walls and fences had all disappeared under the relentless brush of the "renovator". The model was almost a ruin. But to-day it is in perfect condition and exactly as it was made.

The whole model is sketched out and shows particularly the fortification and public buildings. It is nearly thirty-five feet in length and comprises a considerable portion of the Plains of Abraham, as far as the spot where Wolfe died. There is singular correctness to the very shape and projection of the rock, the elevation and details in the city and on the plains, particularly those eminences which commanded the garrison.

A few of the outstanding places marked in the model, interesting to those who even faintly remember the early history of Quebec, are: Cap Blanc and the King's Ship Yard Old French power magazine; the spot where Montgomery fell; site of Kings bastion; the Lower Governors garden; the Upper Governor's garden; Mont Carmel; the King's ordnance stores and
